Born: March 24, 1863, Stanley, NY

James Adelbert McCauley was a catcher for four major league baseball teams (St. Louis Browns, Buffalo Bisons, Chicago White Stockings and Brooklyn Grays) in a brief career that spanned three seasons from 1884-1886. This New Yorker came out of Union College in Schenectady to sign with the St. Louis Browns in the AA, but appeared in only one game. Most of his time in a sporadic tenure was with the Buffalo Bisons in 1885 and the Trolley Dodgers in 1886 where he ended his major league stint.

He had a career batting average of .189 which spoke to the brevity of his work in the majors. In 30 games for Brooklyn, McCauley had an on base percentage of .439 showing a good eye with 11 walks.
